

For nearly six months, I had the privilege of fostering Gordy, a 5-month-old pit bull mix who was dropped at a local veterinarian's office with an old leg injury. After Pet Rescue of Mercer agreed to take him, Gordy's leg was amputated because the break was on a growth plate. But Gordy didn't miss a beat. Three weeks after surgery, he was splashing in the baby pool and playing with my other dogs. When he needed a break, he cuddled beside me on the couch.

I grew up with rescued dogs and got involved with Pet Rescue because I wanted to continue helping animals. It's great seeing new adopters' excitement. I'll never forget the mom of a young autistic girl who cried and hugged me when I brought over their new Labrador retriever. Such experiences make me think, "How could I not be doing this?"

This photo was taken by our volunteer photographer, Winnie Chung, when Gordy's new mom brought him to an adoption fair for a visit. His body was all wiggles, leaving me in no doubt that he was happy in his new home.

— Megan Priestley, Hamilton, New Jersey

YOUR BEST SHOT

Do you have an inspiring photo of a favorite pet or wild animal? Send it to us for possible publication in All Animals or at humanesociety.org/allanimals, along with an explanation of 250 words or fewer about why it's meaningful to you. Photos should be at least 300 dpi at a size of 8-by-10" and at least 2 MB.

To upload your photo and information, visit humanesociety.org/yourbestshot. Send hard copy submissions to All Animals—Your Best Shot, The HSUS, 2100 L St., N.W., Washington, DC 20037. (Hard copies cannot be returned.)